To be able to rise from the earth;
to be able, from a station in outer space,
to see the relationship of the planet earth to other planets;
to be able to contemplate the billions of factors in precise and beautiful combination that make human existence possible;
to be able to dwell on an encounter of the human brain and spirit with the universe - all this enlarges the human horizon

It is fitting for a yearbook which focuses on a short-history of personal and academic activities during your technology studies, to have as a theme a natural wonder such as Comet Halley. According to H. George Hamilton, Director of the Fels Planetarium, the 1985-86 visit of Comet Halley will be its 28th since Chinese astronomers first wrote of this apparition in 256 B.C.. Perhaps the best known example of how comets were viewed as harbingers of doom and disaster was the 16th appearance of Halley's comet in 1066 when the Normans invaded England and killed King Harold II at the Battle of Hastings. In the United States, on the 26th trip of the comet in 1835, Mark Twain was born. Later he said, "I came in with the comet and I shall go out with the comet." This he did in April 1910.

Let the comet of 1986 project you on to the stage of service to humanity in a caring and tender environment - with the faith that each individual has merit in his life. Each individual is worthy of your best efforts to sustain, comfort and enhance that life. Be mindful of how you might feel if the roles were reversed. Dedicate yourself to improving the lot of your fellow human and receive the full measure of their appreciation - the satisfaction of accomplishment, and the joy of a job well done. Go forth, enjoy your profession and do good!

Dear Graduates:

You have now achieved another of your life's goals and have attained a level of proficiency in your chosen careers.

Health related science has been basic to your education at Hahnemann. As graduates, you will be applying your learned scientific principles in the prevention of illness and in caring for the sick and injured. Remember, always, the importance of keeping science within the parameters of human aspirations by which all individuals seek self-fulfillment in life as thinking and cognizant human beings. But never neglect the spiritual, moral and emotional needs of mankind as you scientifically meet people's physical needs. Only then will you bring about the meaningful, productive and creative harmony that is necessary for all to achieve self-desired goals in life.

In today's world of scientific technological advances on earth and beyond the earth, make your challenge one of reawakening the overall need for philosophy, art, religion, music, economics, politics and history as well as scientific fact. These are needed to truly define the power of the mind and heart in their relationship to the body.

These elements of human endeavor should never be set aside or ignored in the interest of human growth and development beyond the planet earth. They give the human organism its privileged uniqueness. The individual and the universe are not separate and apart. They continue to have an intimate relationship. Keep uppermost in your thinking that the wholeness of the organism and its unified structure are on a higher plane than that of energy or matter in their scientifically isolated forms.

The very laws of life have origins far beyond their physical appearance. The human organism still represents organization in which physical, chemical and emotional energies are subject to purposeful control and direction. These are the forces that give rise to the capacity for ideas turning into realities. In reaching beyond the horizon to set your goals then, remember the importance of finding a proper balance between all that is beyond the earth and the logical, consistent, expressive power of human beings. This is the individual power I hope you would recognize because it is only through this power that the reality of the present will stand you in good stead for setting your goals for the future.

My very best wishes to each one,

Mary E. Schlosser

Distinguished Faculty Award

Edna D. Lalli, Ed.D.

Edna D. Lalli, Ed.D., associate professor in the departments of nursing education, physiology, and biophysics at the School of Allied Health Professionals received the Distinguished Faculty Award at the June, 1985, Commencement Ceremonies. This award is given for excellence in teaching and outstanding service in the school.

Dr. Lalli graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with a bachelor in nursing education in 1951 and a master of education in 1955. She earned her Doctorate in education from Temple University in 1980. Dr. Lalli was a science instructor for 23 years at Montgomery School of Nursing Prior to coming to Hahnemann.

The students and Yearbook staff wish to congradulate Dr. Lalli on her outstanding achievement.

Names: You were expecting maybe Partum Post?

Hahnemann University's student newspaper must be fun to write for, but it sounds like it takes the word deadline more seriously than most newspapers. And you just know that it calls the library "the morgue." What would you expect from a newspaper called the Mortem Poste?

The monthly newspaper is edited by students in Hahnemann's School of Medicine, Graduate School and School of Allied Health Professions. "There aren't too many journalism students here," a Hahnemann spokeswoman said. "Last year the students tried to come up with a new name, but nobody came up with anything better."

The runner-up name was probably the Rigor Notice.

CLINICAL LABORATORY SCIENCE

What is...

CLINICAL LABORATORY SCIENCE

"Laboratory tests play a significant role in the diagnosis and treatment of disease and the maintenance of health. When combined with the patient's history, physical examination, and other relevant auxillary procedures, laboratory analyses provide the necessary data by which the physician can make an assessment of the patient's health problem and develop a therapeutic plan of care.

The Associate Degree Medical Technician is a vital member of the health care team. With the aid of the microscope and sophisticated instrumentation, the medical technician is able to examine and analyze samples of blood, tissue and other body fluids. Laboratory technicians identify normal and abnormal blood cells; process blood for transfusions; isolate and identify bacteria which may be the cause of infection; and measure chemical changes in the body.

The Clinical Laboratory Scientist, with a broad background of the chemical and the biological sciences, effectively performs procedures in any area of the laboratory. A scientist is an indispensable top level laboratory worker, a supervisor, a specialist, a researcher, or an educator. Clinical Laboratory Scientists contribute to the prevention, diagnosis, prognosis, and treatment of physiological and pathological conditions.

Employment opportunities are available to the Medical Technician and the Clinical Laboratory Scientist in hospital laboratories, medical centers, clinics, physician's offices, pharmaceutical firms and research institutions."

EVENING DIVISION

The Medical Technology Evening Program was initiated in 1979, and designed for Medical Laboratory Technicians who work in clinical laboratory settings. The program enables laboratory professionals to maintain full-time employment while earning a Bachelor of Science degree in the evening.

This unique four year program combines two evenings of classroom study per week at Hahnemann University with the student's full time employment in the clinical laboratory field. The Medical Technology Evening Program provides the Medical Laboratory Technician increased opportunities for advancement in the profession. The students have an opportunity to meet with their colleagues, to exchange ideas and to learn new technical,managerial and educational skills.

Graduates of the Medical Technology Evening Program are eligible to take the national registry examinations offered by the A.S.C.P. and N.C.A.

A Look to this day!
For it is life, the very life of life.
In its brief course lie all the verities and realities of your existence: the bliss of growth, the glory of action, the splendor of beauty; for yesterday is but a dream and tomorrow is only a vision; but today well-lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope. Look well therefore to this day!
